Add some bite to Bruce's canine fund-raiser

Lloyd Mackenzie

HOW many people would give up the prospect of dozens of expensive gifts to celebrate a milestone birthday to rather help others in need? The compassionate Bruce Wilson is one such man.

"Being involved in animal rescue is something I am passionate about. I have been talking to others about ways to make more of an impact with the work we do," said Bruce.

Bruce will turn the big 'five-oh' on Friday, 12 October and, instead of the age-old tradition of cake and gifts, he hopes to donate enough money to spay and neuter at least 50 dogs. As with most good ideas, said Bruce, this one also belonged to his wife, Chantalle.

The rescue rate per sterilisation is about R800. Bruce hopes to raise at least R40 000 for the event, and hopes to exceed it.

The animal lover opened his home as a depot for CROW, he is actively involved with Husky Rescue KZN and has been taking in unwanted parrots for the last 10 years, re-homing them where possible.

His house is called home by more than just his family, it includes one hamster, a rabbit, four dogs, and 10 parrots.

"The numbers are actually quite low, compared to what it normally is," laughed Bruce. His full-time job is rescue work.

"It's all voluntary and thanks to my wonderful wife, I get to be Mr Mom and do the rescue work that I love."

While he has an abundance of happy stories to share, he said the work he does was not all rainbows and sunshine.

I get to be Mr Mom and do the rescue work that I love.

"There are a lot of days when you want to give it up," he confessed. "But then you have days that the rescue cases work out really well and those are the ones that keep you going."

The funds raised will be split among the organisations he has partnered with for the campaign, which includes SCARR (Shongweni Community Animal Rehab and Rehoming), Lost Souls Animal Rescue, KZN Valley Dogs and Edu-Paw and Paw Prints.

"This drive is a preventative measure and the rescue centres are battling at the moment with funding, so every cent they can save by not having to sterilise a litter of puppies is money that can go into something else," he said.

While he may not be receiving any birthday gifts, he suspects his wife may have a trick or two up her sleeve to celebrate the big day.

Sarnia water crisis continues

NEWS SNIPPETS

Sanelisiwe Tsinde

DESPITE a meeting arranged to address the water issues in the Sarnia area, residents said the situation has worsened and their complaints have fallen on deaf ears.

Residents in and around Sarnia have been experiencing ongoing water cuts due to a number of burst pipes for more than two months now and no solution has been proposed.

"Almost two weeks after the meeting, which was addressed by the engineers, there are still no tankers which we requested and there have been more than six burst pipes since," said Glen Park Neighbourhood Watch PR, Sharman Collins.

During the heated meeting, where residents raised their issues and demanded for the top management to come and address them, the Sarnia community was assured it would be given all the answers in three months.

"We have been told that if we received high water bills we have to pay them and then take it up with the water department, what a joke," said an irate Collins.

The residents said they certainly have no confidence in any further meetings.

"It is clear that they are not prepared to help us in any way. All the broken pipes and rubble have also not been removed off peoples' verges for months despite ongoing requests," explained Collins.

Ward 18 councillor Melanie Brauteseth addressing the residents at a public meeting in Sarnia.

More burst pipes

Birches Pre-Primary School principal, Scilla Edmonds, said, the last time the school reported a burst pipe, it got worse.

"We waited six hours for the phone to be answered. We arrived at school at 6am and found water pouring down the road. We got through at 1pm and got someone to come and look that day at 2pm. The gushing water was finally sorted late in the afternoon, and days later, they returned to repair the road.

"The meeting revealed how bad the situation is and the complaints made were valid. The water was off and on last week and there was no water again on Monday until midday."

With two grandparents days being held this week, Edmonds asked how do they entertain guests when they needed buckets of water to flush toilets.

"Sarnia has their own stories to tell. Thank goodness there was rain this weekend so our tanks are replenished for a while," she said.

Around the corner in Farningham Ridge we have had a lot of water cuts and issues this year. The last month the water pressure has been bad. Also not helping is the guys in the area putting cables in the ground... they digging trenches across everyone's verges and it appears they are damaging water pipes. Also been a number of power cuts.

Brauteseth, who organised the meeting, said many issues were raised from frustrated residents and all the problems will be reported to the heads of department asking them to address these urgent issues.

"I will continue to drive this matter with the department and will have a report back meeting in three months. The water department is currently installing PRV (pressure reducing values) in various areas which is the first step to address the water problems.

New Germany car guards to be monitored

Sanelisiwe Tsinde

CAR guards working in New Germany will now be monitored and their details recorded to reduce crime and make this job professional.

Pinetown SAPS communications officer, W/O Muzi Maphumulo, said there have been many instances where car guards have been linked to crimes such as remote jamming and hijacking.

"The car guards' job is to look after cars and the properties they work in which is the reason we have started this initiative so that someone can account for that area should anything happen."

Maphumulo said the car guards operating in the areas such as Chelsea, Qashana Khuzwayo (Shepstone) and Escom Road will be monitored by police and the CPF.

"All their details will be recorded and we will regulate which post belongs to who. We want them to work together with us and report any suspicious activity. They will also be given a card with all their details and a number which the community can use to report them if they are doing something illegal. The community will also have a right to ask for their cards and check their credentials."

Pinetown CPF chairman, Tony da Canha, said this initiative is not only for the New Germany area as it will be rolled out to other areas, the next one being Pinetown.

"We have spoken to the car guards and told them if they continue working here, they need to be decent and clean. The car guards should not demand money. We are also trying to get sponsorship so we can get them proper uniforms," Da Canha said.

Maphumulo added that motorists still have a responsibility to physically check that their vehicle doors are locked.

Car guards need designated areas

One of the car guards, Billy Ntombela said he resorted to being a car guard after dropping out of school because of drugs.

He said he always wanted to get into the music business, but due to his drug abuse, he messed up and is now a car guard.

"I might have gotten into drugs because of peer pressure, but I do not blame anyone for how I have turned out as I could have chosen not to smoke," he said.

Ntombela said he cannot get a proper job and is working on trying to change his life as he does not take drugs anymore. On a bad day, Ntombela said he makes about R170, but on a good day, he gets more than R300.

"I have been trying to save money to continue my dream of making music. I am a musician by nature and I can write any kind of music, I am not limited to any specific genre."

He said not all car guards are drug addicts, but they have all been painted with the same brush as some smoke in full view of the passers-by.

The challenges the car guards complained mostly about is that they do not have designated areas. "We hope that this initiative will formalise our positions and areas so we can all work together peacefully," said Ntombela.

Roving pair reunited at last

Lloyd Mackenzie

IF cars could speak, this 1959 Rover P4 100 would have a plethora of adventures to share around a camp fire.

In 1959, Betty Staniland (nee Tapson) of Kloof was in her 20s and made the bold decision to pack up and move to England for good.

Her family, which owned the Hawthorne Hotel in Durban, were quite wealthy and her loving parents said that if she stayed, they would purchase her a brand new car.

With this promise, she promptly took a walk down Smith Street in Durban and walked into the most expensive car dealership. In those days this was not Mercedes Bens or Jaguar, but Rover.

"In the 40s, 50s, 60s and 70s Rovers were the cars for the elite. The Queen had one, Margaret Thatcher had a fleet and so did Princess Grace of Monaco. These were expensive cars," said engineer and car enthusiast, John Booth.

Betty walked around the store, pointed at the P4 100 and asked the salesman if she could have it.

The salesman thought she was joking around and was in two minds about kicking her out of the store until she declared she would pay for it, cash.

The following year she was married and the 1959 Rover P4 100 became her wedding car. Her parents shipped it overseas where her and her husband used it to tour through Europe while staying in luxurious hotels.

It has made its way across Europe including Venice, Austria, Germany, Switzerland and France.

The car was then shipped back to Durban after its European adventures.

The little engine that could have done approximately 55 000 miles or 88 000km since it left the showroom floor all those years ago is arguably better travelled than many Durbanites.

Betty, now 87, took wonderful care of the car and only parted ways with it a few years ago. She sold it to a man in Howick and it was later snapped up by John Booth.

"At the time I did not know of the car's history. I did it up and contacted Betty and took it for her to see. She was overwhelmed and just hugged the car for a good few minutes," said an elated John.

"Cars had meaning back then. Today you can never determine wealth by what car a person drives. Back then it was different and a real status symbol," he said.

Betty Staniland briefly reunited with her first automobile, 1959 Rover P4 100.

Diamond anniversary for couple

CELEBRATING 60 years of marriage is truly a blessing for Kloof couple, Elizabeth and Godfrey Le Roux.

"We have been very lucky, although my husband has been sick in the past years, that we have mostly had fairly good health," said Elizabeth.

The couple was introduced through friends and dated for six years before they got married at the Durban Baptist Church on 1 September 1958.

"We were very young at that time and we worked very hard towards getting married and then providing a good life for our children," said Godfrey.

Elizabeth said Godfrey's pleasantness was what attracted her to him. "He was easy going; he use to be a cyclist and has won quite a few cups."

For Elizabeth being on the front page of a Sunday newspaper as the Bride of the Week is still a very special memory and a highlight of her beautiful wedding day.

"Celebrating our 60th anniversary is just amazing. Keeping healthy, I believe staying away from cigarettes and not drinking excessively is what has kept us alive for all these years," said Elizabeth.

Godfrey's advice is for couples to stay faithful to their chosen mate and, "try and improve your living conditions and do not misuse your money and love your partner for who they are and not what they have."

The couple said they have enjoyed their trips overseas as they have visited many other countries with their children who have been a blessing to them and are very grateful for having them in their lives.

Godfrey and Elizabeth Le Roux celebrate their golden anniversary.

Mthethwas are grounded in love

TOLERANCE, respect, listening and loving each other through thick and thin set the foundation for Gladys and Gerald Mthethwa's marriage.

The Mthethwas celebrated their golden anniversary on Saturday, 8 September surrounded by friends and family.

Gerald is still smitten by his wife, and he refers to them as the GG couple.

"Our names both start with the letter G and it just proof that we were meant to be together.

The down-to-earth Gladys said she was taken by Gerald's personality. "He is very handsome and kind."

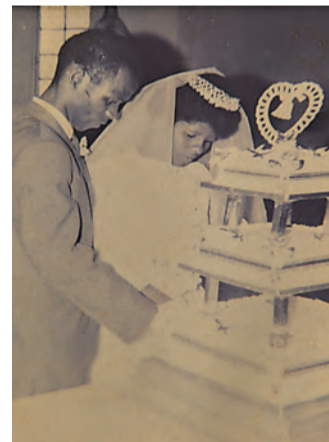

The Molweni couple met in Hillcrest in 1966.

"I was working in the area as a clerk and it was during my lunch break that I saw Gladys. "A few weeks after I met her, she arrived at my workplace to help her mom who was working in the same offices as me.

That is when we exchanged addresses and started writing letters to one another," said Gerald. Gerald decided to take Gladys as his wife. "Seeing that she was very helpful and a praying woman at a young age made me realise that she was the kind of person I would like to spend the rest of my life with."

They tied the knot at a Catholic Church in Hillcrest on 28 August, 1968. Besides having to bury two of their seven children, the couple said they have had a good life.

The couple, who have 21 grandchildren advised young people to be patient with one another, love each other and not get into a relationship based on material things.

Possible end for Wyebank eyesore

Lloyd Mackenzie

FRUSTRATED and irate residents, who are affected by the incomplete construction along Wyebank Road, met with the Highway Mail to address their multiple safety concerns.

The Western Aqueduct Project was awarded to Esor Construction, by the eThekweni Municipality, in 2014.

The project was programmed to take three years to complete and its original completion date was 28 April 2017.

It has been more than a year since the expected completion date and residents are demanding answers and for action to be taken.

Motorists avoid badly tarred sections of Wyebank Road.

Residents speak out:

Pat Pather
(Wyebank Road)

Turning from Sea View Road onto Wyebank Road is so difficult and one day there is going to be a serious accident. When it rains the potholes are ridiculous.

The road closure of the one section of Wyebank Road has been going on for more than five months and the contract has been ongoing for more than four years. Dust and dirt is a continuous issue. Pipes have been dug up and they're still leaking and haven't been repaired.

The biggest danger here is for the pedestrians as they have no choice but to walk on the road. People swear, shout and hoot at them but they are fully exposed and must walk across the rubble.

Venessa Pillay
(Rosedale Road)

They need to complete this project and they need to ensure the safety of the residents in the road. Aside from the condition and the unsightly mess, I am so fed up.

Gail Koekemoer
(Sea View Road)

It is so unsafe. If there is a crash on the freeway this road is backlogged with traffic. It can be virtually impossible for us to leave and, when there isn't traffic, everyone is speeding. They have left this looking as it is - a mess!

Esor Construction's CEO, Wessel van Zyl, explains:

The Project has suffered many delays for various reasons such as business forum stoppages, taxi association stoppages, work force strikes, existing services needing to be relocated, inclement weather etc.

As a result of these delays, the project period was extended and the current completion date is February 2019.

As a result of this liquidity crisis, the project has been further delayed.

Over the past 10 months, Esor has been grappling with extreme cash flow problems which, on 13 August 2018, culminated in Esor Construction entering into business rescue. As a result of this liquidity crisis, the project has been further delayed.

Through the business rescue process, Esor has engaged with the guarantors of the project to unlock post commencement funding which will see improved productions on site and pull back the anticipated completion date.

This plan of action is expected to be implemented in the next two weeks and will see a large roads contractor engaged for the completion of the roadworks.

eThekweni Municipality's deputy head of communications, Mandla Nsele, responds:

eThekweni Municipality awarded four contracts to Esor through normal supply chain management procurement process.

Esor has delayed the contracts for over two years as they could not adhere to any of the construction programmes set by themselves and, as a result of quality control issues and Esor's own stressed financial situation, sub-contractors withdrew from site as they were not paid and there was a shortage of construction materials.

This has impacted negatively on the western and northern aqueducts. Several communities in the north and Pinetown south areas have been waiting for the completion of the projects to improve the water supply in their areas.

Now this will be delayed. As per General Condition of Contract, the municipality holds five to 10 per cent (depending on contract value) in cash in lieu of retention, the municipality holds five to 10 per cent (depending on contract value) in cash in lieu of retention, with five per cent released to the contractor once they have completed construction.

The remaining five per cent is released at the end of the one year defects liability period.

Esor tendered and was awarded four aqueduct contracts under these retention conditions of the contract.

The municipality is fully compliant with the payment terms and legislation as per the Municipal Finance Management Act.

We have had various meetings and discussions with Esor in a bid to help complete this project, however, municipal officials are bound to work within the policies.

Browns' School fete attracts huge crowds

Laurelle and Pharrel Sooman.

THE much anticipated Browns' School fete lived up to expectations as everyone had a superb time with lots of fun activities and delicious food.

"The staff and learners of The Browns' School would like to say a huge thank you to all of our wonderful volunteers and donors who helped to make our fete the great success it was again this year. Some may not realise this, but almost all of our big stalls are run entirely by volunteers (many of whom are actually ex-parents), and all of the items sold have been donated," said Jane Noble, income development director at The Browns' School.

The fete involves a massive effort by many people and next year's fete will be on 7 September, as it is always on the first Saturday in September.

"If anyone is willing to do some sewing for us for next year, or any other kind of craft, cultivate some plants, or remember us when they tidy out excess household goods, we would love to have anything usable please, such as books, kitchenware, big items to auction, and second-hand toys," pleaded Noble.

GREENHAVEN ESTATE – CONSTRUCTION UNDERWAY

A few months ago, Greenhaven Estate in Padfield Park held its launch day. Today, construction of this Active Over 50s residential development is underway, and the building progress on site is motivating even more buyers to step forward and book their units.

This is how it should be. When a residential development is launched, 400 people stream through, and R45m worth of business is transacted. It clearly ticks all the boxes sought after by that sector of buyers. From affordability to facilities to location, the developers and marketers of Greenhaven Estate did their homework perfectly, and have provided the ideal product for the Over 50s, and, of course, investors.

Hard hats, trucks loaded with bricks and mortar, soil, platforms...it's full steam ahead at Greenhaven Estate. Construction is under way, and those first new owners are looking at moving into their units at the end of 2018 or early 2019.

The building timeline is often a concern of those who choose to buy into an off plan development. For Greenhaven, the demand and interest was exactly as the developers, Melki PropDev (Pty) Ltd, had envisaged, so building is right on time.

The development has a number of phases, and for those Active Over 50s pondering the future, consider Greenhaven. The Ageing in Place philosophy with access to qualified nursing staff in your own home, a comprehensive clinic, and an on-site independent medical centre focussing on diseases commonly associated with ageing, ensures that your health concerns are taken care of. Add to that, a Gatehouse at the Padfield Park entrance, state-of-the-art access control, 24/7 perimeter security, a delightful club house, swimming pool, protected wetland with walks and birdlife, and access to the development from both Padfield Park and Kloof, Greenhaven Estate is all about an easy, carefree lifestyle.

Wakefields Real Estate invites you to pop in, have a leisurely look, and a chat. They'll provide the hard hats...

For more info on Greenhaven, visit Wakefields' convenient property exhibitions at:
Malvern Pick 'n' Pay Centre - Thurs 6th Sept & Mon 1st Oct;
Westville Mall - Weds 12th & Thurs 13th Sept;
Westwood Mall - Sat 29th & Sun 30th Sept.

Restore your Health with the Latest Non-invasive Technology

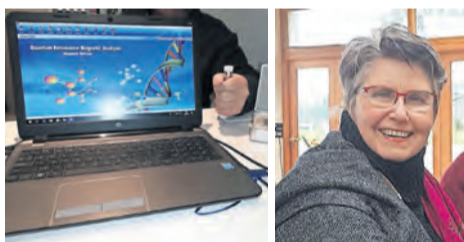

HEALTH WORLD KLOOF – A FAMILY RUN BUSINESS TRYING TO MAKE A DIFFERENCE

Our world is full of sick people. Daily we see desperate parents with small babies through to grannies. In general people are spending more money and time with blood tests and various doctors, ending up on serious medication, yet never feeling well again.

This pushed us to really look at how we can make a real difference and offer more than just good supplements and consultations! Our biggest question was - Why can't people sleep - Why are stress levels so high & depression so rife? - Why the sudden increase in high bp, diabetes, cholesterol, obesity - Why so many pain disorders and auto immune diseases - Why this constant flu that you can't seem to shake even after tons of medication

We decided to invest in the latest technology to help us pin point all these ailments in a non-invasive, painless and affordable way. The Quantum body Analyser & Quantum Ionic Foot Detox machine.

With our Quantum body analyser, we can accurately determine the problem at cellular level and tell you your health status without blood tests in minutes. We can pick up any deficiency, infection, unhealthy organs and even help with early disease detection. It takes only 25min and the cost is only R350. We have helped entire families get to optimal health again with the Quantum Scan. But as supplements take a couple of days to kick in we needed something more. So, we added the brand new and medically proven detox machine.

MRS KOTZE'S STORY: Over the past 2 years I have steadily began to really just feel totally drained, in chronic pain and unwell. I did blood test for hormones, thyroid and loads of other things but everything came back as "ok". I was referred to Nicole to do the Quantum scan but also did the Foot detox on the same day. Not only did they pick up that I had some serious health issues, But the Ionic detox treatment made me feel better straight away. It was like a kick start to a healthier me all in one day. 3 weeks later and I feel totally fabulous. I have since referred all my friends and family to have this done.

Health World offers unique supplement for your individual need as we take pride in helping each client restore their health fast. For the cost of only R350 – alternatively enquire about a combo special when booking your appointments

Future looks bright for Shongweni Dam

THE Shongweni Dam has been at the centre of a controversy since the land claim story broke in 2016. The 1 700 hectare reserve was a hive of activity but has since become a shell of its former glory. However, there is hope as a group of conservationists were appointed to oversee the park's rejuvenation.

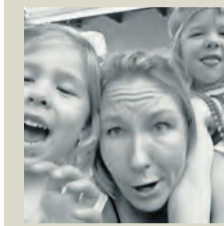

Shane Coetzee: Last time we were there we were kept hostage for a few hours with many other family's. I will never put my foot there again ever.

Rachel Pote: It's soooooo good to hear some good news for a change. Thank you.

Neil Blaylock: Animals are not walking out, they are getting poached, at night you can see the lights and hear the hunting dogs.

Rosalind Lindsay Houareau: Last time I was there, someone drowned. More life guards need to be present.

Land invasion takes many forms

IN May, my neighbour (in Kloof) approached me with his assertion that our boundary fence was incorrectly sited and needed to be moved some four metres into my garden!

He assured my wife and I that professionals had verified his beacon claim and proceeded to not only resite the boundary - slicing off a huge swathe of my property - but also chopped down my mature fruit and tibouchina trees together with all shrubbery within the claimed territory which had previously provided my cottage with privacy. He then proceeded to swiftly construct an overbearing 2.5 storey structure towering over my modest cottage in such a way, destroying all privacy, and seriously devalue my property.

A friendly land surveyor sympathised with my plight and undertook a professional survey with astounding results; the neighbour's land claim was proved to be utterly false!

He was not only obliged to put the boundary fence back where it was originally sited, but to also demolish half of his building to comply with the building-line bylaws.

Success? Not really as fully grown trees (now needed more than ever) take decades to grow and the neighbour, now overtly hostile (amazingly) because his brazen subterfuge cost him dearly, sees no reason or responsibility to rehabilitate my devastated area.

However, I've just learned from the Architectural Authority that I - and other affected neighbours - should have been consulted prior to construction of this enormous structure.

No consultation took place and no consent was given.

The structure now awaits just its roof - is it too late for architects and developers to be forced to abide by the rules - or are they now just 'optional guidelines'?

So please be warned: the municipality, as things stand, sees no reason to insist that builders or developers provide proof of beacons or boundaries. Do make sure you know for certain where yours are!

Speed bumps needed

ON Monday, 3 September, between 11am and 11.30am, my husband was taking his usual daily morning walk.

We live on Union Lane in a block of flats at the end of the road.

As he exited the complex and walked about 20 metres down the road, a taxi knocked him on the verge he was walking on.

As there are no proper pavements, the verge is the closest to keep safe from traffic. So this taxi had no business to come onto the verge.

The driver fled the scene of the accident which is a criminal offence, leaving my husband on the ground and injured.

A SAPS vehicle was cruising by while my husband was still on the ground, but whether they took notice or not, I have no idea, because they continued on their way.

He suffered a broken right arm and some cuts and bruises to his left side. He is currently recovering from an operation to fix the broken bone, after spending a few days in hospital.

I would like to make an urgent appeal to whoever is responsible and involved in the decision-making regarding traffic-calming justified on the grounds of pedestrian safety, to please consider speed humps for Union Lane.

The speeding taxis are a constant. They do not stop or slow down or move over for anyone or anything.

Vehicles entering and exiting their complexes have to be so careful to avoid serious collisions.

I will not even start to imagine if this was a child.

Since these taxis are allowed to drive through our residential neighbourhood then they should do so with regard for the law. There is no excuse for reckless driving and this must stop.

Dangerous arrows found in garden

MY parents live in the vicinity of Edgewood College and my father found this arrow impaled into his orchid in the garden.

This is extremely dangerous as the tip is razor sharp and if it landed on someone, it could cause life threatening injuries.

These are not toys and should be treated with respect and only discharged in a suitable area, for example, at an archery club.

I have spoken to a member of one of these clubs and he said that an arrow like this could go right through a person at 50m!

I certainly hope that this arrow wasn't shot at monkeys or birds.

Please warn people in the Highway area stressing that at no time should these arrows be discharged in a built-up area, nor should they be used by underage and unsupervised youngsters, nor should any animal be shot at.

The consequences of "accidentally" shooting someone is too shocking to think about.

The consequences of

Dark Crompton Street a crime hotspot

FOR the past few months the street lights in Crompton Street have systematically ceased to work.

Calls to the correct department at eThekweni only brings reference numbers and excuses as to why the lights are not repaired. (We have also been assured that the lights have all been repaired).

Probably, as a result of the non-functioning of street lights there has been a number of burglaries in the area, so much so that I understand that one particular complex has been hit no less than nine times in the past three weeks. Can anyone tell me how to get these inefficient persons responsible for attending to the street lights to get moving and to attend to the lights?

We are tired of nothing but excuses and need action.

"Kept in the dark" Pinetown

shooting wildlife and ending up with a charge of animal cruelty against you is life-changing.

Dr Kerry Easson Riverside Veterinary Clinic Durban North

Pinetown Cluster communications officer, Capt Bongumusa Manqele, comments:

"This arrow can be used in areas where it is designated to be used at and not in residential areas. It is not an illegal object, but could be dangerous if shot in a residential area."

Kloof dancers show off their moves

CHELSEA Blair Dance Academy from Kloof is one of the dance troupes to perform at this year's Durban Dance Movement festival.

The sixth annual Durban Dance Movement festival returns this year for two showcases at the Playhouse Drama Theatre on 14 and 15 September.

The festival aims to create a platform for performances and showcases talented dancers in a variety of genres like hip hop, contemporary, ballet, African and Bollywood.

"What I enjoy the most of the Durban Dance Movement festival is the diversity of artists and dancers coming together and sharing a communal space where we celebrate our artistic talents and appreciate our many cultures that makes our City vibrant," said artistic director Jarryd Watson.

Bringing the diversity to this dynamic festival are featured dance troupes like KZN Dance Academy, KwaMashu School of Dance Theatre, City Celebration, Dance Academy Kloof and ShoDem.

Chelsea Blair Dance Academy will perform some contemporary and jazz dances while Kumari Shiskha Dance Institute will perform classical Indian and Bollywood dances at their debut performance.

Catch performances on the opening Friday night at 7pm from professional groups and two shows respectively at 2pm and 7pm on the Saturday from junior and senior level dance groups.

Horror story will push you over the edge

Daniel Thomas and Banele Khomo will take you on a psychological roller coaster in the Westville Theatre Club's production, Horror Story.

THE Westville Theatre Club is proud to present its September production, Horror Story, from 21 to 29 September at its premises next to the Westville Swimming Pool.

The show is written by Canadian playwright, Greg MacArthur, directed by Daniel Oosthuizen and performed by Daniel Thomas and Banele Khomo.

The story tells a tale of two young boys' obsession with horror movies, but more specifically the controversial movie, Blood Screams. The storyline promises to create a mental and psychological roller coaster, is fast-paced and brilliantly timed to push you right over the edge.

Horror Story will be a unique and new experience for all WTC patrons as the group broke away from their usual supper theatre experience to bring the audience right up close to the story. This is old-school, classic theatre at its finest.

Each show will accommodate only 40 seats, which will be strategically placed around the actors and story. This is definitely not for the faint-hearted, and please note that there will be an age restriction of PG13 for violence and language.

Patrons are requested to arrive 30 minutes before the show starts. Tickets are R100 per person and includes popcorn and a glass of wine. Show dates are on 21, 22, 28 and 29 September.

Doors open at 7pm and the show will start at 8pm. No late entrance will be allowed during the first scene.

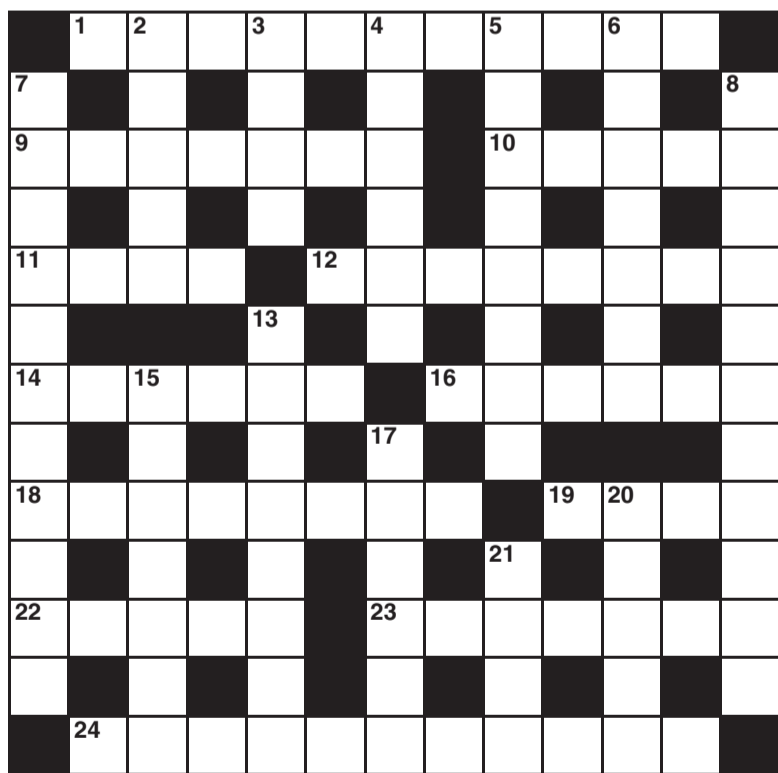

To book, contact Daniel on 060 376 8852, send a direct message the the WTC's Facebook group or via e-mail at fppe.za@gmail.com.

What lurks in your bed?

THERE'S nothing better than climbing into a warm bed at the end of a long day and laying your weary head on a plumped up pillow or two ... but if you knew what else was sharing your pillow and mattress, you might be less keen to get cosy and up close to them.

Unless your pillow and mattress are encased in special protectors, they will build up a collection of dirt, grime and bugs over time. Over a period of around two years, an unprotected pillow could gain as much as half a kilo of this muck!

So, are you brave enough to know what you're pressing your face into each night?

➔Dust mites are microscopic bugs that share your home, living in vast colonies in your couches, curtains, carpets and, yes ... your mattress and pillows. Each night, you're breathing in mites - living and dead - and their faeces, which is a major cause of asthma, eczema and rhinitis. Research shows a good 10 per cent of a two-year-old pillow's weight is made up of this allergy-inducing grossness.

➔Where there are dust mites, there are bound to be masses of your own dead skin cells and and from your pets too, a dust mite's favourite meal.

➔To dead skin cells, add sweat. Every night, the average adult loses up to half a litre of fluid through sweating and the inevitable dribbling, part of which is soaked up by your pillow.

➔All that night-time drooling and sweating creates an ideal environment for mildew and mould spores, exacerbating symptoms in allergy sufferers.

Skin and hair oils, greasy body products, residue from hair products, make-up... all this also works its way into an unprotected pillow, aggravating skin conditions and leaving pillows stained and unhygienic.

How do you solve the problem?

Don't make the bed in the morning because mites like the warmth, so if you pull the sheets back it creates a hostile, cold environment for mites.

Wash your pillow and then tumble dry it to fluff it up, the heat from the dryer kills them. You can even pop the pillow in the freezer to kill the mites - if you have space.

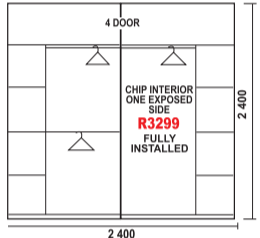

You should avoid drying clothes on radiators because the moisture makes your home more friendly to mites.

Keep the house slightly cooler and vacuum dust up. Get a really good vacuum cleaner that will get in all the nooks and crannies. The cleaner you keep your house the less dust there will be so the less there will be for the mites to eat.

To wall or not to wall?

Four questions to ask about your property's perimeter

PERIMETER security is a major concern for most homeowners, but many overlook the importance of their boundary walls and fences when it's time to sell. Schalk van der Merwe, of Rawson Property Group recommends asking yourself these four questions about your property's perimeter to decide whether an upgrade could benefit your sale.

1. What is the first thing visitors and potential buyers will see when approaching your home?

First impressions count, and they can play a big role in putting buyers in the right frame of mind when viewing your property.

If you have an existing boundary fence or wall, but it looks shabby, poorly maintained or out of place, it can give the impression that your home has not been well cared for. There's nothing worse than visiting a show house and entering through a crumbling fence or cracked, unstable-looking wall. No matter how well cared for the rest of your home is, that first impression will stick in buyers' minds. If this is the case with your property, van der Merwe recommends doing the necessary repairs or replacement before putting your house on the market. "Houses that appear well-loved always achieve better sales prices than those that hint at neglect," he says.

2. Does your boundary wall enhance or detract from your property's aesthetics?

Boundary walls and fences come in all shapes and sizes, and not all of those will suit your particular property and neighbourhood style.

Sometimes no fence is better than a bad fence. It's important to take street appeal into consideration. If your boundary makes - or is going to make - your property stick out like a sore thumb or look like a prison, it's not going to be adding value to your home. In fact, it might do the exact opposite, which could make a renovation worthwhile.

3. How does your boundary compare to that of your neighbours?

Keeping up with the Jones's may not be how you want to live your life, but when it comes to security it is, unfortunately, important.

Buyers compare properties to those in the immediate area and some of the most obvious differences are those you can see from the street. If all your neighbours have high walls or electric fencing and your home does not, buyers are going to have some safety concerns. In this case, there's a 99% chance you will increase your home's value by upgrading to equivalent or better security than your neighbours."

4. Will a new boundary wall or fence increase the privacy and/or convenience of your home?

If adding a new boundary wall or fence will provide more privacy, buffer sounds from the street, or simply create a more useable front garden or courtyard for children and pets, it could definitely be worth the investment.

Privacy and usability is more important than ever now that neighbourhoods are becoming more densely populated and properties are getting smaller. The more serene and private a property feels, and the more usable space there is, the more people are generally willing to pay.

If a boundary wall can help you maximise these aspects, then it's likely to pay off when it's time to sell.

Classic white kitchen stays on trend

THE classic white kitchen is a sizzling trend in kitchen design and according to Mercia de Jager of Miele, it is a long-standing favourite and a much-loved design staple, despite the darker colour palettes that have proved popular in recent years. A white kitchen boasts a timeless quality and offers a versatility that allows it to blend with virtually any style and space.

"A white kitchen can also make a small space feel bigger and brighten a room that lacks adequate natural light. Furthermore, the use of white can provide a clean canvas to effectively showcase other relevant elements in order to create a functional, enchanting and inviting space," explains De Jager. She offers the following tips on using a white colour scheme in the kitchen most effectively:

Open it up

It's no secret that open-plan kitchen-cum-living areas are bang on trend. With this in mind, choosing complementary finishes that marry the various surrounding spaces is a great way to create a holistically seamless design. To create a truly cohesive design for open-plan spaces, it is important to have a thread that runs throughout all the spaces and links them together.

Change it up

One of the most endearing elements of a white kitchen is that you don't have to commit to any one complementary colour. If designed correctly, you should be able to swap out the colour scheme in the form of small features and accessories whenever the mood takes you. Adding pops of colour to your white kitchen is a helpful way to create points of interest and add depth to the overall design."

Step on the dark side

Contrast is your best friend when it comes to white kitchens. Dark floors are a great way to highlight white cabinetry. Wooden floors complement a white colour scheme especially well, and can be linked back to other touches of wooden furniture and accents throughout. If wood is not your material of choice however, you can also use tiles, vinyl or laminates in darker hues to create some contrast.

Fun run adds colour to learners' morning

NEW Germany Lutheran learners, parents and staff had a fun morning with loads of energy during the colour run on Friday, 3 August. This was a fund-raising event where learners were sent home with donation forms. The morning started with an exercise session to get everyone ready to do few laps around the school. Principal of the school, Trish Bentley, thanked all the parents for their support. "We really appreciate the support, it is truly amazing and it shows that we are one big happy family," said Bentley.

Hyundai's success startles

'...it now successfully competes on quality and specification level'

By Gavin Foster

IN the two decades that Hyundai cars have been available in South Africa the Korean carmaker hasn't put a foot wrong. There were some early legal issues, with the private importer who initially introduced the brand being accused of tax evasion early in the new millennium, but the products' quality shone through loud and clear.

After Hyundai Automotive SA arrived a few years later the company for more than a decade refused to release sales figures through the National Association of Automobile Manufacturers of South Africa (NAAMSA) but anybody with half an eye open could see how the number of the Korean cars on SA's roads was escalating. About three years ago Hyundai relented and started reporting sale figures, and the results confirmed that the brand had become a major player in SA. A glance at the returns for the first eight months of this year shows that in terms of passenger car sales Hyundai is the third best seller nationally, with 16,940 new cars leaving showrooms.

Volkswagen tops the log with 34,084 new cars sold and Toyota lies second with 32,576. Behind Hyundai is Ford with 12,168, and Renault closes off the top five with 11,415. Mercedes-Benz, BMW, Kia, Nissan and Mazda are all in the seven and eight thousands, and the remaining 15 listed importers and manufacturers share 29,490 between them.

That Hyundai, a car manufacturer that only ventured into the automotive business in 1967 and first arrived in South Africa less than twenty years ago can have achieved so much in such a short time is astonishing. It's also important to note that while the marque at first relied on cutthroat pricing as its biggest marketing tool, it now successfully competes on quality and specification level more than anything else.

A choice of seven Tucsons

Hyundai's Tucson and Creta soft-rovers are the company's third and fourth best-selling models after the Grand i10 and i20, and both recently received facelifts with new body detailing, dashboards and transmissions.

Two new derivatives were also introduced in the Tucson range, as were a seven-speed dual-clutch transmission and an eight-speed auto gearbox. The full LED headlights and taillights, uplifted front bumper, revised skid plate, new exhaust tailpipes and new front grille are the most visible external changes.

There are now seven Tucson derivatives in three trim levels using three engines - two-litre petrol and diesel units with the auto transmission, and a 1.6 litre TGDI Elite with the DCT. Pricing ranges between R399,900 and R569,900.

The smaller and more affordable Creta has proved very popular in SA, selling more than 8,000 since its 2017 launch. The three model lineup remains unchanged, with all bearing the Executive trim title.

The car comes with a 90kW 1.6-litre naturally-aspirated petrol engine mated to a six-speed manual transmission, the same engine with a six-speed auto gearbox, and a 1.6-litre 94kW turbodiesel also with the six-speed auto box. Pricing ranges from R339,900 for the 1.6 Executive manual to R399,900 for the 1.6 Executive turbodiesel auto.

Both Hyundai's soft roaders are beautifully put together and extremely well equipped. Neither is available in four-wheel-drive, but both are very dirt-road capable, which is about as much as most buyers are ever going to ask of a crossover SUV. I personally find the Creta more appealing than the Tucson, but you may not agree. If you're looking for a high-quality well-equipped crossover SUV it would be worth your while to take a close look at both.

All models come with five-year/90,000km service plans, five-year/150,000km warranties plus additional two-year/50,000km drivetrain warranties. Roadside assistance for five years or 150,000km is part of the Hyundai deal.

Range Rover Velar cuts a sleek figure

By Charl Bosch

IT would be fair to say that the Range Rover Velar has caused more of a frenzy for Land Rover than when the Indian owned British manufacturer introduced the Evoque in 2011.

Named after the original 1969 Range Rover concept with the moniker being derived from the Latin word velaris meaning veil, the aluminium platform underpinned Velar has not only been a styling revolution for the brand, but also a forerunner in the tech department with a multitude of gadgets enclosed in a futuristic array of digital and touchscreen displays that looks both premium and modern.

Billed as the sportiest Range Rover within the local line-up to date, the Velar cuts a sleek figure with its black honeycomb grille, long bonnet and angular LED headlights, with a side profile that it distinctively Range Rover and a rounded rear fascia that its almost boot-like and features wraparound LED light clusters, integrated dual exhausts and a prominent black diffuser.

The Velar's biggest standout is its interior, which is as plush and luxurious in typical Range Rover fashion as it is loaded with equipment.

Taking centre stage is the Touch Pro Duo system, which consists out of a 10-inch touchscreen display that controls the infotainment features, while the lower display has the same dimension and houses the functions for the climate control, driving modes, Terrain Response 2 off-road system and seat settings.

Compared to the somewhat impractical but classy looking white leather, the Union Jack patterns on the ventilated seats, chunky but soft-touch plastics, piano key black and aluminium inserts, the touchscreen was a bit fiddly to use.

This being the HSE, the level of tech is about as extensive as you could imagine with Adaptive Cruise Control, Autonomous Emergency Braking, Lane Departure Warning, quad-zone climate control, the excellent 23-speaker Meridian sound system, two eight-inch rear screens with wireless headphones, a USB input and HDMI jack, surround view camera system and Lane Keep Assist being only a smidge of what is on offer.

The Velar's lowered roofline failed to intrude on head or legroom with the panoramic roof contributing in lending an airy feel, while the boot can swallow 671-litres of luggage or up to 1,731-litres when dropping the rear seats.

The 3.0-litre supercharged V6 in the P380 has 280kW/450Nm on tap, the amount of twist lashes the Velar with immediate effect when you push the thrust lever into the floor. The ZF-sourced eight-speed automatic gearbox is as seamless in its everyday Drive mode as it is instant when you put it into Sport mode which can also be used with the aluminium gear shift paddles fixed to that grippy leather steering wheel.

Fun tanked

The P380's biggest downfall, apart from the R1,409,491 asking price, is the comparatively tiny 63-litre fuel tank which limits both range and the overall enjoy factor associated with that engine.

Left predominantly in Comfort mode throughout its week stay, the P380 returned a best of 11.7-litres/100km, well out of reach of the optimistic 9.4-litres/100km claim.

The P380 leaves no stone unturned regardless if you are on or off-road, but with its relatively more frugal powertrain, the D300 still rates

SA new vehicle sales take a knock

SOUTH Africa's new vehicle market recorded its first decline in August since February, with the National Association of Automobile Manufacturers of South Africa (NAAMSA) recording a 2.5 percent drop from last year's 49,198 units to 47,964 this year. Declines also hampered both the Australian and US markets, while the United Kingdom registered a significant improvement of 23.1 percent, helped by an eight percent spike in the sales of electric and plug-in hybrid vehicles.

As a comparison, here is South Africa's Top 10 best sellers versus the Top 10 sellers from Australia.

The Nissan NP200 (pictured) is rated fifth among local top sellers and is still South Africa's favourite half ton bakkie.

Hit the mark with new CR450R

THE ability to punch out of the gate first and build blistering lap times is what the CRF450R has been all about for the last two years, and performance rises yet again for 2019.

Honda Racing Corporation has extracted considerably more power and torque from the engine by fine-tuning the cylinder head and valve-gear without sacrificing low-rpm tractability.

Three-mode HRC Launch Control is an addition, helping novice or expert riders alike to hit the mark from the starting gate every time. A shift-sensor enables the use of specific ignition maps for each gear, and PGM-FI fuel injection system has been optimised to inject twice per cycle.

The oil pump capacity has been updated, and the clutch lifter and pressure plate redesigned. Power has thus been improved by 2.4 hp at 9,500rpm and torque by 2Nm at 7,500 without adversely affecting low-down performance:

The 2019 model engine's power and torque curves are a considerable improvement on those of the previous design from 3,000 rpm upwards, and the over-rev capability between turns has also been enhanced.

The aluminium twin-spar frame is essentially unchanged but has been made slightly lighter, as has the swingarm, while a new front brake caliper also shaves vital grams off the compact package.

The 49mm Showa upside-down forks and rear shock absorber have also been breathed upon, and the Renthal racing tapered handlebars now offer more fore-and-aft adjustment.

Spectator treat awaits race fans at Dezzi

MOTORBIKE fans are in for a treat on Saturday when the KZNRRC presents its monthly car and bike club championships while also hosting the Classic Superbikes and Historic Motorcycle Group from Johannesburg.

Among the classic racing motorcycles that will be in action will be Allan Barker showboating on the ex-Rod Gray chain-drive Formula One Yamaha XS1100 that won the 1980 SA F1 title and set new lap records at every circuit that year. As a special treat, '70s and '80s GP star Alan North, will be doing a parade lap on the Kenny Roberts KR 500 3-cylinder 2-stroke Grand Prix bike from around the turn of the century - something very special indeed. Ticket prices are R80 adults, Kids R50 (under 12 free, family of 4 gets in for R150. Come early!)
